FOREWORD

1173272

This booklet comes to you as a greeting from its publisher and its editor, that the ties of kinship in the Garfield family may not be forgotten by the present generations or unknown to those generations yet to be.

The compilation of this family history was made possible by the cordial co-operation of members of the several families—grandchildren and great-grandchildren of Nathaniel and Charlotte Garfield, who kindly furnished necessary data. Grateful acknowledgment is hereby made to them and to the Honorable James R. Garfield of Cleveland, Ohio, son of the late President James A. Garfield, with whom this branch of the family has a common ancestor up to the third generation preceding Nathaniel Garfield Jr.

No attempt has been made to trace other lines of the Garfield family from the first ancestors, but only to bring the line of the descendants of Nathaniel Garfield Jr. and Charlotte Harwood Garfield down to the present and to include in the line all who have married into the family.

Several blank pages have been left in the back of this booklet that each family herein mentioned may add births, marriages and deaths as they occur in their own circle so that sometime in the future, if this genealogy is revised, correct addenda may be obtained.

The publisher and the compiler of this little book trust that it may be a source of enjoyment and of increased interest in their family relationships to all the persons mentioned here.

THE GARFIELD FAMILY IN ENGLAND

The early history of the Garfield family in England is not very definite. Historians of that day were neither plentiful nor accurate, but from what compilers of the genealogy of this family have been able to gather it seems probable that the American Garfields descended from a respectable yeoman family which settled during the sixteenth century in the adjacent villages of Kilsby and Ashby St. Legers in Northamptonshire, England. Ancient records which might have thrown light upon the subsequent history of this family met with strange fatalities, having been lost or destroyed by fire.

Among the family traditions picked up during the lifetime of the late President Garfield, who was an enthusiastic seeker after knowledge of his ancestors' records, is one that the family came originally from Wales. This tallies with some data concerning the origin of the family in Chester, England, at the northern boundary of Wales. A Welsh scholar told one of the compilers of a pamphlet on "President Garfield's Ancestry" that he had no doubt that this family was connected with the builders of an old castle in Wales, long since in ruins, known as the Gaerfili, or Carrphilly castle. Others, however, are inclined to believe that the similarity in names does not warrant the conclusion that the ancestors of the Garfields were the castle builders.

Early records show various ways of spelling the family name. One way is mentioned above; Gardfylde and Garfyld and Gardfeld are found in the records of the village of Kilsby, while Gerfyld and Geyfill and Gardfild are discovered in those of Ashby St. Legers. One of the present generation of the family, Jessie Pierce Parsons of Marcellus, N. Y., has found 28 different ways of spelling the name. Gardfield is still to be found in the midland counties of England, in Birmingham and Wolverhampton, but no longer occurs in the postoffice directory at Northamptonshire. The earliest date of the name which has been discovered is in 1524. In 1543 there is found on the manor rolls of Kilsby the names Thomas Gardfylde and Robert Gardefelde and in the probate register at Northampton are found the wills of these two and of John Garfeild. In the seventeenth century Garfeild seems to have been the usual spelling just as Garfield is now. The forms of Gearfield and Gearfeild appear to have been exclusively American.

Regarding the right of the Garfield family to a crest, some authorities declare it is not an armigerous family. Others say that Garfield and Gatfield seem to be identical in heraldry but the crest and coat of arms accepted by the family of the late President Garfield is not that of the Gatfields, which is a ducal crown surmounted by a cross. The crest and coat of arms which is believed to belong to the Garfield family and which is reproduced in a booklet on the ancestry of President Garfield is shown on the cover page of this pamphlet. The description of the crest is "Out of a heart, a hand holding a sword proper." For the coat of arms, "On a field of ermine in gold, three bars in red with a red Maltese cross at left." Below, the motto, "In Cruce Vinco"—by the cross we conquer.

THE FIRST GARFIELD ANCESTORS

Our immigrant ancestor, Edward Garfield, who came with his son, Edward Jr. to America in 1630, probably with Governor Winthrop, and settled in Watertown, Mass., was born in England in 1575. We have negative proof that he was born in Ashby St. Legers but the unfortunate loss of the register of this place, previously mentioned, will always prevent this hypothesis being disproved or confirmed. It is disappointing to remember that the registers of this village and its neighbor, Kilsby, which were lost in the early part of the nineteenth century, began four years before the birth of this ancestor and probably contained information concerning his place of birth and early childhood.

However, early in 1876 while spending a Sunday in Massachusetts, President Garfield found Bond's history of the descent of the Garfield family from this first ancestor, Edward. If Bond is correct there are two Edward Garfields, father and son, who both died the same day, June 14, 1672, the father at the age of 97. Edward Jr. was born in 1605. He was made a freeman in 1635 and a selectman in 1635, 1655 and 1662. A freeman was entitled to vote and had to be a church member. His will and inventory are in the Middlesex records. He was one of the earliest proprietors, a grantee of eight lots and a purchaser of four lots before 1644. He had 30 acres set to him on the division dates of July 25, 1636. About 1650 he purchased a lot of 40 acres since known as the Governor Gore place or the Copley Greene place. His residence was one half mile northeast from these places lying on both sides of what is now the line between Waltham and Watertown, Mass.

Edward Garfeild, as the name was spelled at that time, married Rebecca, last name unknown, who was the mother of all of his children and who died on April 16, 1661, at the age of 55.

The fourth son of Edward and Rebecca Garfeild was Benjamin who was born at the family residence in 1643. He was admitted freeman on April 18, 1690, and died Nov. 28, 1717. He was one of the most important men of his time in Watertown. He was representative nine times, selectman for 20 years, town clerk for 12 years and one of the committee to find the boundary between Watertown and Newton in 1704. In the earnest and protracted controversy concerning the location of the meeting house which arose in 1692 he was the leader of the party inhibiting the middle precinct, now Waltham. He was known as Captain Garfield, although spelling his name "Gearfield," being captain of the militia, and when the town was divided into three military precincts the middle one was often called "the precinct of Capt. Gearfield's company." He was one of the signers of the royal charter uniting the colonies of Plymouth and Massachusetts.

Capt. Benjamin Garfield was twice married, his first wife being Mehitable Hawkins and the second Elizabeth Bridge from which marriage our line descended. Capt. Garfield had eight children. The grave of this sturdy pioneer may be found in the upper corner of the old Waltham, Mass., burying ground on Main street, near Beaver Brook. It is marked by a good sized stone of slate ornamented with a winged heart and scroll work and bears this inscription:

Here lyes Buried the Body of Capt. Benjamin
Gearfield Aged 74 Year
Who Departed This Life
November the 28, 1717

Blessed are the Dead that Die in the Lord.

Among the children of Capt. Benjamin Garfield were two sons, Thomas, from whom President Garfield traced his descent, and Samuel, from whom our line comes. Samuel Garfield was born on Sept. 3, 1690, at Watertown, Mass. He was married in 1714 to Mary Bowman, the daughter of Capt. Nathaniel Bowman, a gentleman of Cambridge, and Anne Barnard. One of Mary Bowman's paternal ancestors was William Palmer who came to this country on the ship Fortune in 1621. It is said that those who came to America on this ship were included in the original Pilgrim Fathers as well as those who came on the Mayflower. Samuel Garfield resided at Watertown and died there, the date of his death not being recorded.

The son of Samuel and Mary Garfield, Eliakim, was their seventh child. He was born on October 3, 1732, at Watertown and was married on July 3, 1759, to Hannah Chase, the daughter of Daniel Chase of Newbury and Hannah Tuttle. Available records do not provide details of the life of this ancestor.

OUR REVOLUTIONARY ANCESTOR

Nathaniel Garfield Sr. was the son of Eliakim and Hannah Garfield and was born on October, 26, 1760, at Leicester, Mass., evidently the first child of his parents. He was married on January, 6, 1788, at the home of Deacon Simon Stone by Esquire Blodgett to Eunice Woodward who was born on November 16, 1762, at Needham, Mass. Isaac Powers and wife and Thomas Powers, town clerk, were witnesses of this marriage.

Nathaniel Garfield died on Feb. 9, 1839, and his wife on May 3, 1855, at the home of their son, Nathaniel Jr., at Hague, Warren county, New York. Nathaniel Garfield was our Revolutionary ancestor. His residence was Leicester, Barre, and later, Princeton, all in Massachusetts. In the archives of that state is found his record as a soldier in the war of the Revolution.

He enlisted for service in the Continental army during 1780 and on July 4 of that year he marched to enter active warfare at Springfield, Mass., arriving on July 10. For five months at this time he saw service, being discharged in December. He was 19 years of age at the time of his enlistment, was five feet, nine inches in height with light complexion and, it is said, curly hair.

The second enlistment of Nathaniel Garfield was in March, 1781, when his name appears on the records in the rank of private on the muster and payroll of Capt. Timothy Ruggles' company. He was discharged the day after Christmas in the same year. During this period of service he was stationed at Rutland, Vermont, as guard.

The gun which he carried during his terms of service is now in the possession of his great-grandson, David A. Garfield, at Albion, Michigan. The son, Nathaniel Garfield Jr., known to his friends as Judge Garfield, had the barrel of this piece shortened by a foot, the old time flint lock replaced with a more modern lock and used it for shooting small game at his home on the shore of Lake George, New York. The old flint lock was preserved, however, and has again been placed on the gun but the former length has never been restored and the bayonet is gone.

At the home of Elizabeth Weed Hinkley in Waupun,

Wisconsin, is a wool blanket which our Revolutionary ancestor carried during the war and a piece of his wedding coat which came from France.

His wife, Eunice, lived to the ripe of old age of 93. She and her husband made their home during their later years with the son and family at Lake George and were greatly revered by all the household. Memories of this grandmother still linger with some of the Garfield cousins now living. One tells of watching her drink her tea from a cup and saucer decorated with an all-over brown pattern in which peacocks were a part of the design. As she poured the hot tea into the saucer from which she drank, as was the custom in those days, the little grandchild was quite thrilled to see the peacocks turn a yellowish brown. This cup and saucer is still in the possession of the granddaughter. The senior Garfield and his wife occupied their own apartments at the home of their son and these rooms were never invaded by little feet except on invitation. It was considered a great privilege to be asked to enter the grandparents' living room and doubtless some sweetmeat dear to the childish heart was usually forthcoming to celebrate the event. The photograph of this grandmother was taken from a daguerreotype made during the last years of her life.

THE LAKE GEORGE HOME

The son of Nathaniel and Eunice Garfield, Nathaniel Jr., was born at Princeton, Mass., on July 14, 1793. He was married on November 19, 1817, to Polly Cook, (probably a nickname for Mary). Their residence was at Hague on the shore of Lake George where for a number of years Nathaniel Garfield was the proprietor of the Garfield hotel and justice of the peace, thus causing him to be known and called throughout this section, "Judge" Garfield. The family holds a copy of the New York Justice, a digest of the law of New York state, published in 1815, on the fly leaf of which he wrote: "Nathaniel Garfield, property, Hague, August 29, 1828."

On the death of his wife in the year after their marriage, December, 20, 1818, Judge Garfield was left with one daughter, Mary Cook, who was born on November 29 of that year. For eight years he cared for this little daughter alone and on January 26, 1826, at Ticonderoga, New York, he was married to Charlotte Harwood who was born at Pittsford, Vermont, on May 8, 1802, and who gave to the young girl all of the love of a true mother so that the five daughters and two sons later born to this couple knew no difference in relationship. Mary Cook Garfield was married to Smith Weed, who was a native of New York state but who later with his family made Fox Lake, Wisconsin, their residence, and her children are the Weed cousins with whom the same cousinly friendship exists as with the other descendants of Judge Garfield.

The Garfield hotel, a picture of which is here shown, was very popular with residents of the large cities in the southern part of New York state. Here hospitality reigned. The ballroom over the "woodshed" in the wing of the house was the scene of many festivities. This woodshed had large entrances that wagons loaded with fuel might drive in to unload for the house was heated with wood of which there was an abundance on the farm lying back of the residence and rising up to the hills seen in the background. In fact much of the farm was hilly and of use only for pasture. Later graphite and garnets were discovered in the vicinity and for many years mining was successfully carried on by the Dixon Graphite company and others, and the well known "Ticonderoga" pencil carried in its length graphite from the Garfield hills.

Members of the family now living can recall the stories told by Grandmother Garfield of pioneer life among these eastern hills. Panthers howled at night and life, especially in the winter, was bound to be lonely at times. Often during this season the big bob sleigh would be fitted with a sail and "Ty," as Ticonderoga was called by the natives, visited for food and supplies. Once when returning in a blizzard a small rocky island was encountered with disastrous results. Albany was also visited for supplies, Judge Garfield driving there with his team on the sleigh. At least two drop-leaf small tables are in possession of his grandchildren which are made of the rough mahogany lumber which he brought from Albany, finished and made up by a "cabinet maker," for furniture factories did not abound in those days.

Sleigh ride parties across the lake from the Vermont side were frequent diversions during the long winters and some of the present generation remember tales told by one of the six Garfield daughters of these gay occasions when, the house being filled overnight by guests, the members of the family, especially the little girls, were forced to curl up on the shelves of the linen closets.

One story which never failed to make the shivers creep up the backs of small listeners when related by "Grandma" Garfield was the burning of the steamboat, John Jay, off the Garfield pier. Many passengers lost their lives on this memorable occasion in July, 1856, and today a small leather trunk is in use for storage purposes which floated ashore and was salvaged by one of the Garfield family at this time. No one ever claimed it and it is believed that its owner was lost.

Another incident is related by one of the living grandchildren of Grandmother Garfield who remembers hearing her tell it. A gale blew a flock of geese across the lake into the Hague cove and the owner could not be found. They were kept and cared for by the Garfield family until enough feathers had accumulated to make a bed (a prized possession in those days) for each of the six daughters! "It's an ill wind" etc.

Incidents of the Garfield family life and home at Lake George are not complete unless mention is made of "Old Daunt" an Indian, literally one of the last of the Mohicans. Old Daunt lived at the hotel where he supplied the table with fish and game, acted as guide for parties of tourists and was an all-around handy man and general factotum, self appointed, at the Garfield establishment. He was a useful servant excepting at such times as he fell from grace temporarily for, in common with all of his people, he had a weakness for fire-water. One granddaughter relates that on a certain day when Grandmother Garfield had stocked her cupboard with a special quantity of "election biscuit" she heard a commotion in the room which contained the cupboard and on investigating found that Old Daunt, having partaken of the cup that cheers and also inebriates, was playing the role of Santa Claus to a pack of mongrel dogs which he had coaxed into the house and to which he was throwing out the biscuit with generous and impartial hand. The intrepid pioneer housewife proceeded without ceremony to box Old Daunt's ears and one of the family happening to look in at this crucial moment observed that the tall Indian, whose stature was a noble example of his tribe, was unwittingly causing his disciplinarian, herself not short, to give a little upward hop each time she landed her well aimed blow. It was one of those provoking things over which one can laugh upon recounting it, but it was no laughing matter either to Old Daunt or to our grandmother at the time.

The annals of Dartmouth college, which is an outcome of an old Indian Mission known as Moore's Indian school founded at Lebanon, Connecticut, in 1750, mentions an Indian graduate of this school by the name of Samson Occum who preached and went to England to raise money for this school. It is believed that this Occum was the grandfather of Old Daunt for he often referred to him and to his father, Paul, who was also a preacher.

FRANCIS PARKMAN AT LAKE GEORGE

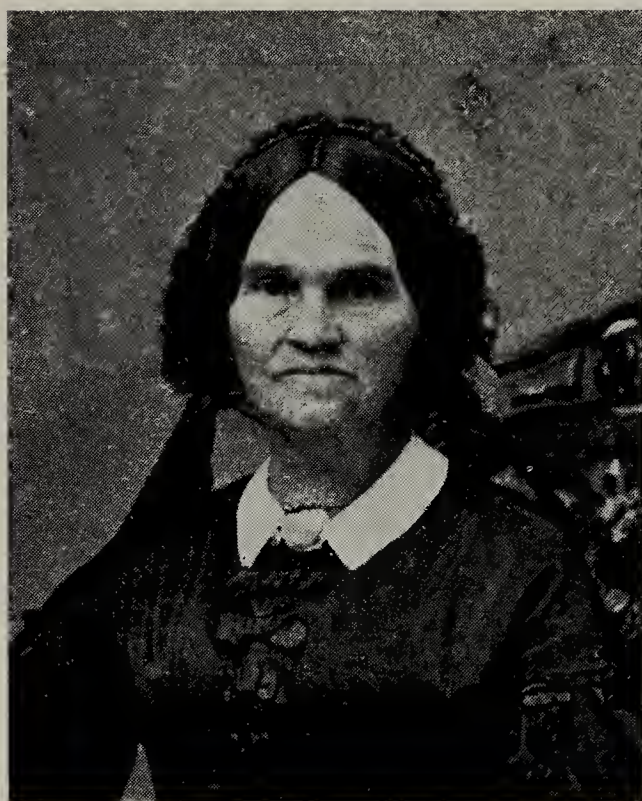

In a copy of Scribner's magazine of July, 1901, may be found extracts from the diary of Francis Parkman, historian, in which is related his visit to the home of Judge Garfield and of short expeditions around Lake George. He mentions using Great-Grandfather Garfield's old gun while shooting robins. Parkman made this trip to Lake George in 1842 when he was 18 years of age and the account of his wanderings makes interesting reading in view of the youth of the lad. In the article which he wrote are found the following passages pertaining to his visit at the Garfield home. He states that he inquired of some one where he might mail a letter and was told that the post office was at the Garfield hotel, a hostelry kept for summer guests by Nathaniel Garfield Jr. He says: "We found the post office, a neat little tavern kept by one Garfield, entitled the Judge." Mentioning his joining friends at the hotel on another day he says: "The Judge was hospitable and kind and we instantly planned a fishing party for the next day. The family are essentially genteel in the true sense of the word; the Judge a gentleman, his wife a lady, both polite by nature. The lady has a pretty flower garden—with no sunflowers in it!"

Again is recorded under date of July 25: "We went shooting with Gibbs (a guest at the hotel) the ostensible object being a robin pie. The weapon we carried was used in the Revolutionary war by Garfield's father. It was six feet long, slender, small bore, light breach of polished oak, flint lock.

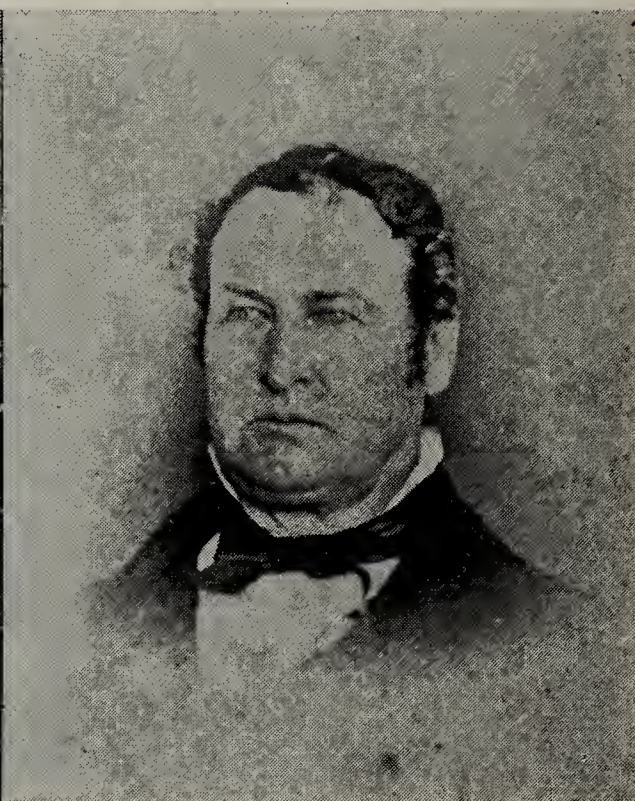

"In the afternoon we witnessed the arrival of the great Nabob, Mr. Caldwell, the founder and owner of the village of that name, who comes on a long promised visit in a little barge of his own with flags at prow and stern and a huge box of wines for his private refreshment. Tonight the report of a piece from his boat gave the signal of his approach. Patrick (the Garfield's Irish gardener) stood on the beach with the Judge's best gun and answered with a salute, for so it must be or the great man would be displeased."

"July 26: The great man and his retinue occupied every nook and corner of the little tavern. Two of his satellites were quartered in the same room with us and entertained us all night long with snorings diversified and powerful."

Charlotte H. Garfield

Nathaniel Garfield Jr.

Nathaniel Garfield Jr. died at this home at Lake George on September 22, 1853, at the time when the elder son, Hiland, was 18 years of age. Before his death, of which he felt a certainty for some months, the father planned with his son the carrying on of the business and the farm for the next two years. After a time, some of the daughters having married and settled in Vermont or western New York, the sons, Hiland and George, and the unmarried daughters with their mother also moved to the western part of the state settling near Honeoye Falls and at Holley.

In about two years after the old home passed from the hands of the Garfield family the hotel burned to the ground. A new house was built on its ashes and very appropriately named "The Phoenix." It stands today and welcomes the summer guest as before. Its only reminder of the former hostelry, however, are its front doors which at the beginning of the fire were taken off their hinges and saved intact. They are still in use. (See page 26)

Charlotte Harwood Garfield lived with her elder son at his home south of Honeoye Falls and moved with him to Albion, Michigan, after his marriage in 1863. She was always a source of joy in the household of her son and the two children of that household still remember the happiness her presence there gave them. A new house was built on the place by her son and the mother was given her first choice of rooms. She chose an upper room which commanded a view of the highway for a mile to the east. Oak trees spread their branches close to her window and she always threw out the combings from her hair for the birds to weave into their nests. Very frequently the children would pick up a discarded nest into which was interwoven Grandma's soft hair. It was a cherished possession to be placed in their treasure chest.

Charlotte Garfield often visited her son and daughters in New York and Wisconsin and her return to her Michigan home was eagerly awaited by the small boy and girl there for did not Grandma always remember to bring them some simple token? Her rock candy, which her baggage never failed to produce, was a marvel of beauty and sweetness, especially when it was tinted pink! One of the beautiful things of life is to cherish memories of a loving and loveable grandmother. It was during one of her visits to Honeoye Falls that she died on January 2, 1878. She is buried nearby at North Bloomfield where lie other members of her family.

The husband, Nathaniel Garfield Jr., with his first wife, Polly Cook, his parents, Nathaniel Sr. and Eunice Woodward Garfield, and George, an infant son, lie in the Garfield family burial plot in the old cemetery at Hague just south of the steamboat dock a short distance from the old homestead. The spot is very beautiful, rising at a steep slope from the main highway following along the west side of the lake and overlooking that lovely sheet of water. The family has enclosed the plot with a wall of big boulders and paved the inside with concrete in which the headstones are imbedded, thus for all time preventing their falling and the growth of weeds and saplings. The State Bank of Lima, New York, holds a fund to insure the perpetual upkeep of the plot and relatives visiting there are urged to report to this bank anything which is required for its improvement or further care.

The following are the inscriptions on the headstones, three of which can be glimpsed in the accompanying photograph. The photograph showing the headstone of the Revolutionary grandfather was taken before the last improvement was made in the burial plot.

THE HARWOOD FAMILY

The children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren of Nathaniel and Charlotte Garfield up to the present time are listed further on following an outline of the Harwood line from which the grandmother descended.

The parents of Charlotte Harwood Garfield were Simon Harwood and Ruth Hall. The first known ancestor of Simon Harwood was John Harwood, a citizen of London, England. It is thought he never came to America and, if he did, he returned to his native country. His wife was Dorothy, surname unknown. In a will dated 1653 two sons are mentioned, Nathaniel and John and a daughter, Anne.

Charlotte Harwood's line continues from Nathaniel Harwood, probably the immigrant ancestor, whose occupation is listed as a cordwainer or worker in leather. His life span was 1626-1716 and his residence, Concord, Mass. His wife was Elizabeth Usher.

Peter, one of Nathaniel's four sons, was born in 1671. He was a farmer living at Concord and later at Littleton, Mass., where he died in 1740. The sons of Herbert J. Harwood, the seventh generation, now occupy his former home, or did in 1912 when this data was recorded. Mary Fox was the name of Peter's wife.

Of the five sons of Peter, Benjamin carried on the line of Charlotte Harwood. His wife was Bridget Brown. He was in the first company of settlers of Bennington, Vermont. The wife came to that place on horseback carrying her personal and household effects with her. The company traveled by the guidance of trees, probably a blazed trail. The dates of the life of Benjamin are 1713-1758. He was born at Concord and died at Amherst, Mass. His widow then returned to her home in Bennington.

Six sons and three daughters were born to Benjamin and Bridget Harwood of whom Eleazer was the ancestor in direct line. He was born in 1737 and lived until 1807. His birthplace was Hardwick, Mass., and he was married at Sunderland, Mass., to Elizabeth Montague. The couple moved to Bennington, Vermont, one month after their marriage. Having a good education, Eleazer was called to the pulpit of the Congregational church. In 1786 he was licensed to preach and was ordained and installed as the first pastor of the church at Pittsford, Vermont.

On the death of Rev. Harwood his widow later married Rev. James Smith. She came from a long line of Montagues, her mother's maiden name being that also. Six daughters and one son were born to Rev. Harwood and his wife. The only son, Simon, married Ruth Hall whose dates of birth and death are 1766-1816. Simon Harwood settled in Pittsford, Vermont, and was one of the early deacons of the church there, although he was born in Bennington, Vermont. He died at Pittsford.

On April 19, 1787, he was married to Ruth Hall who was born at Wallingford, Connecticut, and died at Keeler, Michigan, at the home of her eldest daughter, Betsy, who married Wolcott Keeler and with him settled in the then wilderness of southern Michigan. All of their 11 children were born in Pittsford. Ruth Hall came from a line of distinguished ancestors, her father being Elias Hall and four paternal ancestors being named John. One was known as Esquire, another as Deacon. Elias Hall served in the French and Indian war under Lord Amherst and was on duty at Ticonderoga and Crown Point. He settled in Cheshire, Conn., and died at Williston, Vermont. In Ruth Hall's mother's line are seen the names of Humiston, Atwater, Heaton and Street.

From the marriage of this worthy couple, Simon Harwood and Ruth Hall, came that noble woman, Charlotte Harwood, who became the mother of five daughters and three sons of her own and the kindly stepmother of another daughter as mentioned previously, all of whom with one exception, she and her good husband reared to maturity. Their names in order of age and dates of birth are as follows: Augusta Jane, April 7, 1827; Sally Cordelia, March 19, 1829; Julia Ann, June 27, 1831; Hiland Harwood, August 30, 1835; Almira H., January 9, 1838; George, May 24, 1840; Charlotte, September 30, 1843.

DESCENDANTS OF NATHANIEL AND CHARLOTTE GARFIELD

Mary, the eldest daughter, and Smith Weed, whose marriage occurred at the Lake George home on May 2, 1842, resided during the most of their married life in Fox Lake, Wisconsin. They died there on September 8, 1886, and December 6, 1873, respectively. They had six children: Clarence, born April 10, 1843, died on March 10, 1910; Edger, July 20, 1846, died February 15, 1857; Jennie, born May 9, 1851, died on November 5, 1884. On September, 20, 1882, she was married to Lucius Dwight Hinkley of Waupun, Wisconsin. They had one daughter named for her mother, who was born on November 3, 1884, and who died on May 19, 1890, aged five years. She was given a mother's loving care by Elizabeth, her mother's youngest sister, born August 3, 1856, whom Mr. Hinkley married on September 18, 1889. Mr. Hinkley died in 1907 and his widow still lives in Waupun.

Eva F., the second daughter, was born on April 2, 1853. She was married on September 20, 1880, to Hugh S. Gamble of Warren, Wis., and went there to live, later moving to Yankton, South Dakota, which is still her home.

The sixth child of the Weed family was Fred who was born on June 11, 1861, and died at the old home at Fox Lake on October 20, 1917. He was married in April, 1895, to Mary Evers who died in 1901. There were no children.

Eva Weed and Hugh Gamble had four children: Jennie E.; Hugh S.; Edith A.; James W. Mr. Gamble died on March 1, 1904. He was a lawyer by profession and served his locality in the legislature of South Dakota for a number of terms.

Jennie, the eldest daughter, was married to Chester B. McVay on September 2, 1908. Mr. McVay died at Independence, Kans., on Dec. 26, 1918. Jennie was born on August 30, 1882, at the first home of her parents at Warren, Wis. She has three children: Chester B., born on August 1, 1911, at Yankton, S. D.; Jean A., born July 15, 1914, at Independence, Kans., and Hugh G., born at the same place on Jan. 14, 1916. Mrs. McVay now resides at Yankton with her mother.

The eldest son of Eva and Hugh Gamble, Hugh S. Jr., was born on May 2, 1886, at Yankton. He now resides at Sioux Falls, S. D. In April, 1915, he was married at Chicago to Catherine Doherty. They have three children: Hugh Stuart, born October 12, 1916; Catherine, born June 26, 1918, and Margaret Virginia, born November 27, 1921.

Edith A. and James W., the two younger children of Eva and Hugh Gamble, were born on January 22, 1893, and January 20, 1895, respectively. The former resides at Yankton, the latter at Aberdeen, S. D.

AUGUSTA JANE GARFIELD

Augusta Jane, or as she was called by the family, Jane, the second daughter of Nathaniel and Charlotte Garfield, was married on January 15, 1850, to William Oric Harrison of Chittenden, Vermont, at the home at Lake George.

Nine children were born to them at their home in Chittenden. Later the family moved to Holley, New York, and here the wife died in October, 1894, and the husband on December 12, 1900, at Jewell, Kansas, while visiting one of his sons.

The children with their birth dates are as follows: Charlotte Augusta, October 6, 1851; William Henry, September 18, 1853; Annie Columbia, May 9, 1855; Guy Garfield, August 19, 1857; Hiland Oric, December 12, 1858; Hugh, May 25, 1860; Dan Bogue, January 29, 1865; Sallie Elizabeth, December 14, 1866; Dwight Harwood, October 3, 1869.

Guy Garfield Harrison was married on September 11, 1882, at Jewell, Kansas, to Fannie Ellen Brackett. They have four children: Raymond Dennis, born, January 23, 1884; Annie Augusta, August 21, 1886; Phenia Helen, November 29, 1892, dying November 22, 1893; Ruth Garfield, October 5, 1898; Marion Brackett, March 21, 1905.

Of this family Raymond was married on March 10, 1908, to Anna DeWalt of Centralia, Kansas. They have two children, Rodney DeWalt, born January 26, 1909, and Helen Hettie, August 16, 1911. Their residence is Burden, Kansas, where Raymond is engaged in the lumber business.

Annie Augusta married Louis M. Jorgenson on December 28, 1910. They have three children: Ruth Elizabeth, July 30, 1913; Mary Christine, June 24, 1916; Paul Harrison, June 4, 1921. The family resides at Manhattan, Kansas, where Mr. Jorgenson is engaged in teaching.

Ruth Garfield is the wife of Ezra B. Breithaupt who is engaged in Y. M. C. A. work in Detroit, Mich. Their children are: Winifred Lucile, born April 2, 1925, and Warren Samuel, March 6, 1929.

Marion Brackett is unmarried.

Hiland Oric Harrison died at Brandon, Vermont, in February, 1903. He never married.

Hugh Harrison and Luella Jordan were married in Jewell, Kansas, on January 12, 1888. Sally Elizabeth was their only child. She was born on October 29, 1888, and died on December 31, 1923. She was married in June of 1915 to Fred Vincent Kraemer and to them two children were born: Katherine Elizabeth, in March, 1916, and Charlotte Augusta, in December, 1923.

Dan Bogue Harrison was married to Artie Theresa Dillon of Pennsboro, West Virginia, on October 7, 1894, at Downs, Kansas. They had three children: Catherine Augusta, born August 14, 1895; William Henry, July 6, 1897; Dan Bogue Jr., June 25, 1899, who died February 26, 1922.

The daughter, Catherine Augusta, married John Dean Kraemer on February 19, 1921, at Downs, Kansas. Their children are: John Harrison, born September 12, 1922; Dan Newton, January 3, 1924, and Hugh Harrison, October 8, 1925.

The son, William Henry Harrison, and Helen Leone Palmer were married in Concordia, Kansas, on June 12, 1924. They have one son, William Henry Harrison, IV. born September 3, 1925. The family home is now Downs where William H. Harrison is assistant cashier in the Downs State bank.

Elizabeth, or "Libbie" as the cousins know her, was married to Herbert Reed Glidden of Holley, N. Y., at her home in that village on November 21, 1894. She still lives in Holley although her husband died on October 5, 1908. Four children were born: Herbert Harrison, October 4, 1895; Dwight Langdon, in September of 1900, dying the following April; Reed Garfield, June 30, 1904; Charles Harwood, September 29, 1907. Charles died on October 11, 1925.

Harrison Glidden was married on November 15, 1919, to Dorothy E. Johnson and they have two children, Elizabeth Ann, born on October 24, 1920, and Herbert Harrison Jr. on September 23, 1926. The home is in Osborne, Kansas, where Harrison is postmaster.

Reed Glidden is unmarried and is at present in Newark, New Jersey.

Dwight Harwood Harrison and Ruby Isobel Paradis were married in Concordia, Kansas, on July 10, 1895. They have one child, James Orie, who was born on October 24, 1901. He is one of the assistant cashiers in the State Bank of Downs, Kansas, which is his father's residence. He was married on August, 1926, to Margaret Caroline McLaughlin of Boulder, Colorado.

Of the four Harrison brothers Guy, Hugh, Dan and Dwight, the first two are retired farmers living at Jewell. Dwight is president of the State Bank of Downs and his brother, Dan, cashier.

SALLY CORDELIA GARFIELD

Sally Cordelia, or Delia, as she was called by her family, the third daughter of the Garfield household, married Samuel Bishop Bogue of Chittenden, Vermont, on May 15, 1851. On the death of her husband in August, 1857, she went with her three young children: Nancy Cordelia, born October 13, 1852; George Garfield, February 26, 1854; Charles Bishop, October 12, 1856, to western New York to be near her brothers and sisters. Later she moved to Albion, Michigan, and there she married Lewis D. Crane about the year 1875. She died at the home of her granddaughter, Lena Hunt Farley, south of Albion on July 5, 1923, aged 94. She was the last of the eight sons and daughters of Nathaniel and Charlotte Garfield.

Nancy Bogue was married to Franklin Fiske Hunt of Honeoye Falls, New York, on January 17, 1877. They lived in Honeoye Falls and later in Oneida, still later in Albion, Michigan. Three children were born, all at the first place of residence: Lynn Bogue, May 11, 1878; Lena Marie, June 28, 1879, and George Bogue, June 2, 1883. Nancy died June 4, 1905 and her husband January 5, 1906.

Lynn Bogue Hunt married Jessie E. Bryan of Wyandotte, Michigan, on June 11, 1903. They reside at Sea Cliff, Long Island. Lynn has a studio in New York City and is widely known as an outstanding artist, portraying small game and birds with remarkable skill. From childhood his artistic talent was apparent and he has made a careful study of his chosen profession. His canvases are sought by the most discriminating art collectors and his sketches by publishers of magazines and works of art.

They have two sons, Lynn Bogue Hunt Jr., born on April 20, 1907, and Bryan, October 26, 1908. Lynn Jr. lives at home and Bryan is in Tokio, Japan, a salesman for the Standard Oil company in charge of a large district.

Lena Marie and Minard E. Farley of Albion, Michigan, were married on October 14, 1905. Their children are: George Garfield, born February 17, 1909; Martha Frances, June 8, 1910; Minard Jr., July 31, 1913; Irene Cordelia, August 3, 1915, and Nancy Bogue, November 22, 1917.

None of these children are married and all live at home on the Farley Fruit Farms three miles south of Albion with the exception of the eldest, George, who, graduating from the Michigan State college in June, 1929, was given a position as inspector of perishable products with the Merchants Dispatch company with headquarters in Rochester, N. Y.

George Bogue Hunt is a resident of Jackson, Michigan, where he is traffic manager of the Southern Michigan Transportation company. He was married to Mary Ethel Anthony of Sturgis, Michigan, on October 14, 1908. Their children with dates of birth are: Lena Louisa, November 13, 1909; Henrietta, July 4, 1911; George Bogue Jr., April 2, 1913; Laura Ethel, April 11, 1915; H. L. Anthony, May 15, 1917; Margaret Joan, December 4, 1919; Lynnda Marie, September 5, 1923. None are married and all live at home.

The children of Charles Bishop Bogue, who married Mattie G. Harris on October 12, 1876, are Charles Bishop Jr. who was born on August 24, 1877 and who died in March, 1915, and Myron Harris, August 18, 1878. George Hiland and Harry Harwood, born later, both died while infants.

Charles Bishop Bogue Jr. married Mayme Richardson of St. Joseph, Missouri, in June, 1902. They have two sons: George Richardson, born February 10, 1906, and Harris Dickson, March 24, 1909. George married Hazel Craig on September 8, 1928, and resides at Burlingame, California, as does also Harris Dickson.

Myron Harris Bogue married Norah Belle Young of Detroit on December 14, 1914, and resides in that city.

Charles Bishop Bogue Sr. later married Eva Knight of Chicago where they have since resided. To them a daughter, Ruth, was born on September 8, 1903. She married Donald Miller of Chicago on December 12, 1921, and has two children, Charles William, born the following year and Ellen, December 25, 1927.

George Garfield Bogue married Clara Martin of Paw Paw, Michigan, on October 14, 1880. She died on May 18, 1903. George later married on September 16, 1905, Martha H. Bogue, who resides in Detroit where for many years her husband was engaged in the wholesale hardware business. George G. Bogue died on November 29, 1910, and left no children.

JULIA ANN GARFIELD

Julia Ann Garfield, fourth daughter in the House of Garfield, was married to Amasa Harwood Martin, on May 16, 1854. The home was on a farm near Honeoye Falls, New York, and here their three children were born: Jane Elizabeth, July 22, 1860; Alexander H., April 21, 1863, and Dean Garfield, June 20, 1865.

Jane, now a resident of Rochester, New York, married George W. Atwell a lawyer of Lima, N. Y., on September 28, 1887, and lived in Lima until her husband's death on December 14, 1920. There were no children in the family.

Alexander married Mary B. Houghton of Little Falls, New York, on October 12, 1887, and their home is "Far View" farm on the Albany-Boston Post Road near Lima village where Mr. Martin or Alex, as he is called by the family, is engaged in the banking business. Their children are: Helen Arnold, born December 9, 1889; Richard Houghton, September 27, 1894; Gerald Houghton and Julia Ann, twins, June 29, 1897.

Julia Ann married on August 5, 1922, the Rev. Albert J. Anthony, a Presbyterian minister and worker in religious education. The home is in Auburn, N. Y., where Rev. Anthony is assistant dean of the School of Religious Education of Auburn Theological Seminary. They have two sons: Robert James, born September 12, 1923, and David Martin, November 20, 1926.

Richard and Gerald, after taking agricultural courses at Cornell University, are managing the home farm. Helen lives at home.

Dean G. Martin married on June 20, 1888, Martha Windecker, of Little Falls, New York. He died at the family home on December 16, 1918.

They have three children: Myra Amanda, born November 18, 1889; Harwood, born October 3, 1893, and Carolyn Jane, August 19, 1897.

Of these children Myra married Richard H. Lawrence of Detroit on June 12, 1915. They have two sons, Richard Martin, born April 2, 1917, and Stuart Edward, November 9, 1921. The family home is in Detroit.

Harwood Martin married Edith B. Schraeder on September 24, 1919, and their children are: Dean Garfield II, born November 17, 1920; George Schraeder, May 7, 1923; Carolyn Jane, July 26, 1925; Ruth Harwood, February 26, 1927. Since the marriage of Harwood and Edith Martin they have lived on the Martin homestead in the home established by the former's grandparents. This is also the home of Mrs. Dean Martin. Besides farming Harwood is active as an officer of the Dibble Seed company.

Carolyn Jane Martin lives in Rochester, New York, having married Arthur W. Beale of that city on June 12, 1920.

They have three sons: Robert, born February 24, 1922; James Martin, February 13, 1923, and Arthur William, April 1, 1925.

HILAND HARWOOD GARFIELD

Hiland Harwood Garfield, eldest son of Nathaniel and Charlotte Harwood Garfield, married Mary Catherine Albertson on October 8, 1863. They lived for about five years on their farm near Honeoye Falls, New York, and here their two children were born, David Albertson, August 8, 1866, and Mary Harwood, June 29, 1868.

The family soon moved to a farm near Albion, Michigan, and at this home the father died on May 10, 1894. The city of Albion then became the family home and here the mother died on May 2, 1923.

David A. Garfield was married on April 29, 1895, to Marian C. Howlett of Albion. This city has been their home ever since. David A., known to his cousins as Bert, shortened from his middle name, has been engaged in the banking business for many years, being president of the Albion State bank.

There are four children in this family: Stephen Munroe, born July 8, 1899; Marian Catherine, February 19, 1901; Robert Howlett, September 8, 1903; David Albertson Jr., October 20, 1909.

Stephen was married on January 16, 1926, to Fannie Adkissen of Roseville, Ill., and their home has been in West Branch, Michigan. They have two children: Virginia, born December 25, 1926, and Stephen Munroe Jr., June 13, 1929.

Marian Catherine and Thomas King of Coldwater, Michigan were married on September 16, 1925. Their home is in Chicago, Ill., where the latter is with the Western Electric company. They have one son, David Garfield, born March 13, 1929.

Robert Howlett and Theo Tuttle of Jackson, Michigan, were married on August 17, 1929. Their home is in Albion from which city Robert goes out into the state as state bank examiner.

David Jr., is a student at the State college of North Carolina.

Mary Harwood Garfield was married on October 23, 1901, to Robert A. Raymond of Saginaw, Michigan, which was their home for a number of years. Since the death of her husband on October 9, 1918, she has resided in Albion.

ALMIRA H. GARFIELD

The husband of Almira H. Garfield, the daughter next in line in the Garfield family, was Harvey Beach Parmele who was a resident of West Bloomfield, New York. They were married on August 13, 1863, at North Bloomfield. For many years they made their home on a farm near Augusta, Michigan, and here the wife died on August 29, 1881. Later the family home was established near Bedford, north of Battle Creek, where the husband died on August 15, 1910.

There are five children in the Parmele family: Charlotte Garfield, born April 23, 1865. Following her mother's death, which occurred when Charlotte was but 16 years of age, she gave to the younger brothers and sisters a mother's care taking her place at the head of the household and carrying on a grown woman's work in the farm home. She is now a resident of Glendale, California.

The other members of the Parmele household are: Frank, born July 29, 1868; George E., March 26, 1871; Delia A., May 2, 1876; Lyman H., November 27, 1879.

Frank was married on December 8, 1894, to Minnie Riemer and their home was on a large farm north of Battle Creek. Here the wife died on June 19, 1920.

There are three children: Harvey, born November 27, 1898; Marie, February 8, 1906, and Ruth A., November 12, 1912.

Harvey was married on December 23, 1924, to Mayme Garrison and they have one daughter, June Pauline, born November 26, 1927. Their home is near Bedford, Michigan.

Marie was married to Claude Campbell on November 26, 1926, and resides in Battle Creek, her father and sister Ruth also making their home there.

George E. Parmele, the second son, was married to Mattie McGee of Bedford, Michigan, on April 6, 1901. They have one daughter, Genevieve, born January 1, 1902. She was married on January 1, 1926, to Spencer Collard and resides in Grand Rapids, Michigan. They have one daughter, Evagene, born May 12, 1927. George and Mattie Parmele live in Glendale, California, where the former is engaged in building construction.

Delia A. Parmele and Hira Cary of Battle Creek were married on November 9, 1904. Their home is in Pennfield township, north of Battle Creek, on a farm and here their two children were born: Charles P., October 11, 1910, and Charlotte G., October 27, 1911.

Charles was married on November 12, 1929 to Vida Case. Their residence is on the Cary home farm.

Charlotte lives at home.

Lyman H. Parmele, the youngest of the family of Almira and Harvey Parmele, was married to Jennie Harradine of Grand Rapids on March 21, 1918. They lived for a number of years on the home farm north of Battle Creek, but now reside on a farm near Bellevue, Michigan.

They have twin daughters, Maxine E. and Marilyn E., born January 6, 1923.

GEORGE GARFIELD

George Garfield, next to the youngest of the eight children of Nathaniel and Charlotte Garfield, was married to Sarah Purdy Fowler, daughter of Richard R. Fowler and Martha Purdy, on September 18, 1866. Their home was established in Holley, N. Y., where he was a buyer and shipper of grain and beans. He died on December 4, 1888, as the result of an accident, and his wife died on May 6, 1909.

Two sons were born: Charles Fowler, October 10, 1872, and Harry Harwood, May 18, 1878.

Charles entered business in Rochester and was later joined by his brother where they established large real estate and investment corporations. He has also served as president and vice president of banks, the Rochester Chamber of Commerce, etc. He was married on August 24, 1894, to Myra Avalene Shipley of Pultneyville, N. Y., who died April 28, 1925. Retiring in 1918 from much active business because of his health he has made his winter home in Los Angeles or Beverly Hills, California, and his summer home near Rochester at Williamson, N. Y., continuing his business offices in Rochester.

Harry Harwood Garfield was married July 4, 1919, to Lillian Frances Jenks of Rochester, N. Y. Their home is in that city where the former is president of the Garfield Real Estate company and active in the business and civic life of the city. In 1928 they adopted a son, Hobart Hughes Garfield, who was born November 4, 1925.

CHARLOTTE GARFIELD

Charlotte Garfield, the youngest daughter of the Garfield family, married Seymour Pierce of Honeoye Falls, New York, on November 7, 1866. During their lifetime their home was in this village where Mr. Pearce had established a mercantile business. He died on January 1, 1917, at the home of his daughter at Marcellus, New York, his wife having died at the home in Honeoye Falls on August 4, 1913.

One daughter, Jessie Garfield, was born on March 15, 1869. On May 10, 1893, she was married to Levi E. Parsons who died on June 26, 1928.

Two children were born, Levi Seymour, January 29, 1904, and Marian Elizabeth, October 12, 1905.

Marian married Theodore Parsons Hall on April 6, 1929, and their home is in Rochester, New York, where Mr. Hall is a member of the Cunningham Hall Aircraft Corporation

Seymour remains at home where he carries on his father's business, construction work and farming.

FAMILY CHARACTERISTICS

In reviewing this brief and inadequate history of the Garfield family from the earliest known ancestor it will be noted that members of the family from the very first seem to have been public spirited and to have had a hand in the advancement of their respective communities. The present Garfields can point with pardonable pride to this fact. The humorist, Mark Twain, once said that it is well not to go too far back into the family tree lest one find some member hanging from its branches! Let us be glad that no such fear exists in the Garfield family.

This spirit of co-operation and willingness to serve for the general good is noticeable down through the younger generations. Public offices and private positions of trust have been filled and are now being filled by Garfield descendants whether or not they bear that name.

Regarding the physical characteristics of the children and grandchildren of Nathaniel and Charlotte Garfield, one especially is marked—that of height, or as someone has graciously put it, “commanding stature.” As will be noted in the military record of the senior Nathaniel Garfield, he was five feet, nine inches tall, but this figure has been considerably exceeded by some of his grandchildren and great-grandchildren even down to the fourth generation. All of the daughters and sons of Nathaniel Garfield Jr. and his wife were tall and unusual height marks many of their children. Of the six men who now are the only ones to bear the Garfield name, six feet is the average height. Broadly speaking, a true Garfield is tall and a short Garfield does not exist!

SUMMARY

As one reads these annals of the Garfields one catches visions of the struggles, the privations, the sacrifices and hardships of the pioneer. Life, with the first of the family on the English countryside in the hectic days of rapidly changing monarchies and curbed liberties, surely must not have been an unmixed joy and the Garfield settlers of this country, even down to the beginning of the nineteenth century, carved their way through wildernesses and built their homes amid dangers which must have discouraged all but the stoutest hearts.

Is it too much to say that the sterling character which seems to be inborn in the descendants of these noble forefathers is a blessed heritage from those who builded for the future in material and spiritual ways and the fruit of whose efforts we now enjoy?

For no one of the numerous lineage of the Garfields do we have to apologize. Surely we of the present generation have much to be thankful for in being well born, in having no physical, mental or moral handicap bequeathed us by our forebears and in being able to enjoy the high privilege of living up to the standard they set us and meeting the challenge they left us in the noble example of their lives.
